Why The Drawdown?

As the private capital fund industry moves into a new phase of maturity and institutionalisation, the pressure and complexity faced by operational professionals is increasing exponentially. New challenges arise daily, including rising investor demands, greater regulatory requirements, leveraging technology to scale efficiently, selecting the best third-party providers, and implementing robust ESG policies.

Against this backdrop, we are inviting operational leaders to join The Drawdown. Members have exclusive access to an expert and supportive network where connections, valuable insight and best practice are shared. We are empowering our members to succeed in this complex environment and to play an instrumental role in shaping the future of our industry.

Special reports

The Drawdown produces annual reports that provide members with the latest developments within key industry topics

Techwork

Each year, our editorial team selects 20 of the most interesting technology-focused professionals working within private capital funds. Based on extensive research and interviews, this special report includes in-depth profiles of the new cohort of Techworkers.

Fund Domicile Report

Thanks to ever-evolving tax regimes and fund structures, each year the editorial team takes a close look at the latest developments throughout key fund domiciling jurisdictions to ensure the readership is kept up to date.

Awards Special

Following The Drawdown Awards, the editorial team puts together a special report, including insights from the judging panel as well as interviews and profiles with the winners.

Editorial events

The Drawdown hosts regular events during the year, bringing together industry experts and private equity operational leaders

Breakfast Briefings

The Drawdown hosts regular Breakfast Briefings, bringing together industry experts to discuss hot topics.

Private Dinners

The Drawdown hosts regular private dinners, bringing together a select group of private equity operational leaders for relaxed discussion and networking.
